In order to use TWEN, you will need a Westlaw account. You should have received a code to create one with your orientation e-mail. If you have lost this or didn’t get one, please go to the Reference Desk in the Williams Library Reading Room and speak to a librarian.

Once you have created an account, go to www.lawschool.westlaw.com and sign in.

At the top of the next screen is a link to TWEN.

Click on the “Add Course” button to go to the list of courses which use TWEN. Note: not all professors will use TWEN as their course management system. If you do not see your course in TWEN, your professor may be using Canvas or some other course management system.
You can either search for the classes you want to add, or browse the list. If joining a class requires a password, the “Add” button will be a lighter color and there will be an entry field in the “Course Password” column. Your professor will give you the password.

For additional help with TWEN, please consult Westlaw’s FAQ.